9/11 @ 20: A REVOLUTION IN NATIONAL SECURITY LAW

9/11 @ 20: A REVOLUTION IN NATIONAL SECURITY LAW

The 9/11 terrorist attacks twenty years ago launched a revolution in every aspect of our national security apparatus. Whether through the enactment of new laws or the reinterpretations of existing authorities, the United States radically changed its posture to address this new challenge posed by those who planned, authorized, committed, or aided the 9/11 attacks, and those who harbored them. This two-part webinar series will attempt to evaluate the successes and failures in that effort, and the efforts still required to keep our nation safe while protecting our liberties.

BREAK

3:30-4:30

Homeland Defense After 9/11... An Island No More

Jarisse Sanborn
Brig. Gen. (USAF Retired) and Former General
Counsel, American Bar Association

Retired Air Force General Jarisse Sanborn will recount her involvement in establishing a new homeland defense command, its legal authorities, and her work in developing domestic rules of engagement following 9/11. She will also describe the legal framework for targeting terrorists overseas, most famously invoked against American citizen Anwar al-Awlaki in 2011.

PROGRAM SCHEDULE SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 2021

1:00-2:00

Trying the Terrorists

Barry Jonas

Assistant United States Attorney, U.S. Attorney's Office for the Northern District of Illinois

Although criminal laws focusing on terrorism had been on the books for years, Barry Jonas, an attorney with the Department of Justice specializing in national security matters, will discuss how that legal framework changed after 9/11.

2:00-2:10

BREAK

2:10-3:10
